gan square, Philadelphia.

General Description of the Purkeville Hydropathic Institute.

The main building is three stories high, standing back from the street about one hundred feet, with a semicircular grass plot in front, and contains thirty to forty rooms. The grounds around the house are tastefully laid out with walks and planted with trees, shrubs, &c. On the left of the contract to these grounds is a cottage containing four waits and planted with trees, strongs, sec. On the left of the entrance to these grounds is a cottage containing four rooms, used by male patients as a bathing house, with every convenience for "packing," bathing, &c.; on the right of the entrance, about two hundred feet distant stands a similar cottage, used by the ladies for similar purposes.

In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hundred feet, are three other cottages, some eighty feet apart. One of these is the laundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

weil as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

THE WAYER WORKS

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a hill, surmounted by a large-codar reservoir containing five hundred barrels, brought from a never-failing spring of pure cold waster in the side of the hill, by "a hydraulic ram," a self-acting machine of east iron, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the spring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoir to a fountain in the water-works yard, surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the water-works is a circular room, containing the douche bath, which is a stream failing from a height of about thirty feet; and can be varied in size from half an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. Aljoining the douche room is a dressing room, with marble tables, &c.; the rising douche (for the cure of piles, &c.) is one of the most complete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

There are many other appliances, which can be better understood by a personal examination.

THRILLING INCIDENTS OF THE WARS OF THE UNITED STATES;
comprising the most striking and remarkable events of the Revolution, the French war, the Tripolitan war, the Indian war, the second war with Great Britain, and the Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $2 50 per volume. Orders respectfully solicited.

SEARS PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best hooks that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Plan.—The plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining rasponsible men as agents, who are well known in their own tounties, towns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little in sending $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the wholesale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to engage in the sale of the above volumes; and all postmasters, clergymen, book pediars, and nowspaper agents, are respectfully requested to act as our agents. A handsome remuneration allowed to all who engage in their sale. For particulars address, post

(ERICSSON LINE)

Have resumed their operations for the year with increased means of accommodating the trade between Philadelphia and Baltimore, in the most regular and expeditious manner, and at their former materially reduced prices, being, on dry goods, hardware, &c., only 10 cents per 100 pounds, and but half the price charged by other lines.

Persons wishing to avail themselves of the facilities and moderate prices of the Line, are attried to give explicit and moderate prices of the sending their goods to the Eriesson Line, and they should be particular to possess themselves of the receipts which are invariably given for their goods. In those are stated the price charged for transportation; and it will prove a protection against the double rates exacted by other lines, who have no published rates.

Goods destined for the West, South, or other places beyond Baltimore, forwarded promptly on the day of their arrival, with every care and attention, free of all charge whatever for this service, in the shape of commissions or otherwise.

AMERICAN TELEGRAPH

[Communicated.] Dollars vs. Conscience—Wise Legis-lation.

To the Editors of the American Telegraph. GENTLEMEN: In the square in which I reside there is one bar for the sale of spirituous iquors. The proprietor evidently makes out retty well; and his influence is felt. I have en many respectable men enter his doors; and nany of other kinds; and I have seen many stagger away from them. I can trace the downward course through this bar-room of several now in their graves, and certainly of two who have passed through the Penitentiary. The succession of customers within the last ten years has comprehended a great many, and nisery in some form has been the lot of not a few of them. Occasionally there is a disturbance at this house at night, but I can only remember one or two instances of people's being arrested here by the police. Good drink, good oysters, good cigars, and various comforts can be had. The landlord is quite flattered, and certainly nets as though he thinks he is entitled to very great respect. I know not how it is, but the customers of such men certainly do treat them with great deference. He has a common, vulgar look, and could not be mistaken for a genleman; and yet he is fair, and wears costly clothes and ornaments, if he does not dress in good taste. He has considerable influence over iany of our youths, and it is a grief of some of our neighbors that their boys steal styly into this man's house at night. Could we induce him o remove we would; and if we could be sure that no other dispenser of strong drinks would come into our neighborhood, I think a bonus of a housand dollars would be readily given. The people on both sides of the way are interested in this, and are all of one mind—all except the man who owns the tavern house. we cannot so protect ourselves. Our city, for a bribe of a few ill-gotten dollars, will let any man take up alongside of us this hell-peopling trade. We desire our children to grow up in purity; but, for a mere trifle, the city authorities will force them to witness drunkenness and all that is vile—to hear blasphemy, obscenity and lewdness, and to become familiar with the forms and actions of men who are hastening down to ruin and despair. Does the city treat us well? Does it act justly We all pay taxes, and some of us render im We all pay taxes, and some of us render important services at times. Do we deserve no protection? Now I think no place for the sale of intoxicating drinks should be permitted in any square without the assent of two-thirds of those who own and reside in, or rent by the year, the houses on both sides of the street, along the whole length of such square; and if at the corner of two streets, then let the four rows be taken into the count. I know the four rows be taken into the count. I know the sentiments of members of our Councils well enough to be sure that, if not over-awed and intimidated by the rum-selling interest, they would agree to this. English tyranny forced the Chinese to receive the opium that was ruining them; Rome is punishing severely any subject, male or female, who dares to discourage the smoking of cigars; the established Churc in London derives immense revenues from the renting of houses for purposes too vile to be here written; and the city of Washington, for a few hundreds of dollars, permits and protects a traffic so debasing, so demoralizing, so accursed of God, that its practisers and their pa trons alike descend to infamy in this life, and in the next, to that greatest depth of misery, Enlight Washington! how should we reverence your wisdom and your virtues, that thus you can barter away the peace, the happiness, the mo-rality of your sons! Christian city! wise lawmakers! benevolent era! The numbers, the capital and the influence devoted to the sole of that which is ever attended with a curse, is greater than all other interests, and the soul-destroyer is honored and cheered, and enriched, this morning, tells the whole story: DEFEAT OF THE LIQUOR BILL.-For several recks past, there has been before the common council a bill requiring, among other things, that, before a license be granted for the sale or barter of spirituous liquors, the assent of the majority of the white housekeepers on the square where it is purposed to set up a shop shall first be obtained; and affixing fines and penalties for a violation of the law. This bill was last night, after debate, defeated, by an indefinite postponement, moved by Mr. Miller. Those who voted in the affirmative were: Messrs. THE FLYING MACHINE OVER THE WATER,-We learn that the French Academy of Sciences is a good deal interested by the invention of a flyng machine by Don Diego de Salamanca, (which was noticed briefly in the Tribune of the 5th nstant.) With this machine Don Diego's laughter, Rosaura, rose in the air some time ago at Madrid, to the great astonishment of the paniards, who are but little accustomed to this sort of miracles. Don Diego de Salamanca and his daughter are about to arrive at Paris to show the effects of his marvellous invention. The machine is very simple; it consists of a case two feet long and one foot wide, adapted a band of leather round the waist, buckled behind. Two iron rods, fastened to the case, support a small piece of wood, on which the feet repose. The case contains a simple and ngenious mechanism, similar to that employed to set an automaton in motion. The mechanism worked by means of a handle. It sets in work two large wings, made of very thin caout-chouc, covered with feathers; and the wings may be so worked as to produce vertical, perpendicular, or horizontal flying. The number dle has also to be turned every quarter of a league to regulate the distance. The operation of turning lasts a minute. Horizontal flyng is the most difficult; the wings beat the air ke the oars of a boat, or rather as the feet of swan when it swims. By means of this curius machine a man can go almost as rapidly as carrier pigeon—from the Hotelle de Ville to he Arc de Triomphe de l'Etoile in eight minutes, and in half an hour to Versailles. No man has the right to expect a good fortune, unless he goes to work and deserves it.

The Prayerless Home.

BY PROFESSOR ALLEN. "I have a good offer for my farm," said Mr. Earl to his wife, "and I think I shall sell it." "Why do you wish to sell it?" said Mrs. Earl.

"The land is stony and partly worn out. I can go into a new country where land is cheap and fertile, and realize a much larger return for the same amount of labor."

"If we go into a new country, there will be no schools for our children."
"Our children are not old enough to go to school; by the time they are old enough it is most likely schools will be established wherever we may go."

"We may also be deprived of the privilege of attending the house of God." "We can take our Bibles with us, and can read them on the Sabbath, if we should happen to settle at a distance from a place of worship." "It will be far better for us to remain here, where we can educate our children, and bring them under the sound of the Gospel. "I must do what I think is required by the interests of my family."

"Pray remember that property is not the only thing needed by our children."

A few days after this conversation, the bargain was concluded, and the farm became the property of Mr. Hele. Mr. Earl was to put him in possession of it early in the spring. Mr. Earl was descended from one of the early puritan settlers of Massachusetts. His ancestors for many generations had been devout members of the church of Christ. He was the first alien from the commonwealth of Israel. His mother was an amiable, but not a pious woman, and some thought it was owing to her that he had not profited by the instructions of his pious father, and had turned a deaf ear to the Gospel which he had heard from his infancy. He loved the world, and in order to secure a larger portion of its goods he was willing to leave the home of his childhood and the graves borders of civilization.

of his fathers, and to take up his abode on the His wife was one who preferred Jerusalem to her chief joy. The old time-worn house of God, with its high square pews, and huge sounding-board, was as beautiful to her as the most faultless specimen of architecture to the connoisseur. She desired that her children might grow up under the influence of the truths which were proclaimed in that house. Her chief desire, with respect to them, was, that they might become rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom. In the spring she was constrained to bid farewell to her native village. After a wearisome journey, she found herself and family in what was then a wilderness, in the western part of New York. The Gospel was not preached in the vicinity, nor was even a log school-house erected. For a time Mr. Earl observed the Sabbath so far as resting from labor was concerned. He even spent some time in results. in reading the Bible, but he did not pray. consequence, the blessed book was gradually

The climate, and perhaps the labors incident to a life in the wilderness, caused Mrs. E. to fall into a decline. When, after a lingering illness, she bade her husband farewell, she charged him to send her children to her native ome, that they might there be taught, in the school-house and the church, truths which could make them wise unto salvation. Mr. Earl complied in part with his wife's request. He sent his daughter Julia, who was now nine years of age, and her younger brother. The lder one he detained to assist him in his labors.

It was six years before Julia returned to her father. She spent that time among the pious friends of her departed mother. She found the home of her childhood greatly changed. A neat village surrounded the tasteful dwelling now occupied by her father. The spire of the village church rose aloft, and the school-house was not far distant. She rejoiced to return to her home. though she was to meet its chief charm no more. A check was soon given to her joy. When she sat down to the evening meal, the blessing of God was not invoked. It was with difficulty that she could eat. When the hour for retiring came, she wasstill more unhappy, as the family separated without prayer.

Mr. E. soon perceived that his daughter did not feel at home in his house. It made him sad at heart, for he had long looked forward to her return with hope that she would restore, in part at least, the loss he had experienced. He aid to her oneday, "Julia, you do not seem to feel as much at home as I could wish."

After some hesitation, she replied. "I do not

"Do not feel safe!" said he in astonishment. "I am afraid to live under a roof where there is no prayer.

The remark went to the father's heart. He thought of all the mercies he had received, the protection he had experienced unasked! continued to think of his ways till his soul fainted within him. He looked at his oldest on, a Sabbath-breaker, and ignorant of God. Carolina. and could not conceal the truth, that it was owing to the act of removing him in childhood from the means of grace, and exposing him to influences that in all probability would prove his ruin. In a few days he asked Julia to read the Scriptures and pray in the family. It was with joy that she heard the request, but with great ifficulty that she complied with it. It was not till she was reminded of the joy it would give to her mother, could she be a witness of it, that she consented to make the attempt. In a few weeks, on a Sabbath morning, the father himself took the Bible, and, having read a portion, kneeled down and with tears besought God to teach his stammering lips how to pray. Light, peace, and safety took up their abode in a dwelling now no longer prayerless.

Dr. LINGARD, the celebrated historian of England, died at his residence, Hornby, the 17th ult. For some time his health had been failing, and for the last few weeks a fatal result had been almost daily expected. He was aged eighty-one years. Dr. Lingard has been de-scribed by those who knew him well, as one who was equally remarkable for manly modesty of turns given to the handle determines the height to which it is desired to go. Carry a Thing through.—Carry a thing through. That's it; don't do any thing else. If you once soundly and wide-awakedly begin a thing, let it be carried through, though it cost your comfort, time, energy, and all that you command. We heartily abominate this turning backward, this wearying and fainting of soul and purpose. It speaks imbecility of mind, want of character, courage, true manliness.

Carry a thing through. Don't begin until you are fully prepared for its accomplishment. Think, dig till you know your ground, see your way. This done, launch out with all your soul, life, heart, and fire, neither turning to the left nor right. Push on gigantically—push as though you were born for the very work you are about beginning; as though oreation had been waiting through all time for your especial hand and spirit. Then you will do something worthy yourself and kind.

Carry a thing through. Don't leap and dally from one thing to another. No man ever did any thing that way. You can't. Be strong-from one thing to another. No man ever did any thing that way. You can't. Be strong-minded. Be pluckish, patient, consistent. Be hopeful, stern, manly. When once fairly in a work, don't give up. Don't disgrace yourself by being on this thing to-day, on that to-morrow, and on another next day. We don't care if you are the most active mortal living; we don't care if you labor night and day, in season and out: be sure the end of your life will show nothing if you pernetually change from object nothing if you perpetually change from object to object. Fortune, fame, success, and position, are never gained but by piously, determinedly, bravely sticking, growing lively to a thing until it is fairly accomplished. In short, you must carry a thing through if you would be anybody or anything. No matter if it denies you the pleasures of society and the thousand yearly gratifications of life. No matter of these. Stick to anything and carry it through Believe you were made for the mat-ter, and that no person else can do it at all. Put forth your whole individual energies. Stir, wake, electrify yourself, and go forth to the task. Only once learn to carry a thing through in all its completeness and proportion, and you will become a hero. You will think better of yourself, and others will think better of you. Of course they will. The world, in its heart, admires the stern, determined doer. It sees in him its best sight, its highest object, its richest treasure. Drive on, then, in whatever you undertake. Consider yourself amply sufficient for the deed. You'll succeed, never fear. THE COURSE OF TRADE .- Canals, railroads and steamboats are making some curious changes on the course of trade in the country. We see it stated in a Buffalo (New York) paper, that a merchant of that city has received consignments of corn and oats of superior quality from the banks of the Mississippi, about two hundred and fifty miles north from S⁺. Louis. They and fifty miles north from St. Louis. They came by way of the Mississippi and Illinois rivers, and Illinois canal and the lakes, and the sales yielded a handsome profit on the invest-
